FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Rev. Allen Page, III

Greetings, Metropolitan sisters and brothers! Here we are on the doorstep of the close of another conference year and the beginning of summer. While we are accustomed to fun, joy and laughter in the summer months, let us also focus on deepening our devotion to God Almighty. True, deep faith requires humility and sacrifice. But not in the sense that we subject ourselves to unreasonable ascetic renunciation or harmful introspection. Meditation and consultation with God propel our faith forward, connects us with God's power, and shows us God's work in the world around us. Deepening our devotion to God hinges on our acceptance of God's divine revelations each new year we are given. Psalm 30 encourages the believer to "sing praises to the Lord, O you faithful ones, and give thanks to His holy name." There is power in having faith and trusting in God even in the face of the darkest of times. We are being invited to a deeper devotion of remembering how God has heard us, healed us, and brought us up from the depths of life. It is a reminder that even when we feel like all is lost, God lifts us from the pit.

Psalm 30 also reminds us that the pathway to deepening our devotion is found through praise. We are called to praise — our spirits should take their delight in the Lord and His goodness toward us. Therefore, examine yourselves and take note of your commitment to God. How deep is your love for God and His people? Deep calls to deep — deep faith transcends the deepest pits of life. Are you driven to a devotion that returns humility and faithful service to His kingdom? Take time this summer to grow your commitment to God, to deepen your devotion through practices that yield a return of love, joy, peace and contentment always. subject ourselves to unreasonable ascetic renunciation or harmful introspection.
